IITE 2020 as an Important International Event

In the third millennium, tourism has emerged as one of the most peaceful economic activities in the world that, besides economic benefits, creates deep cultural links between religions and countries, leading to the dialogue of civilizations and Religions. Identification and Documentation of Unknown Tourism Capacities in Three Areas of Historical, Cultural and Religious Attractions, Intangible and Natural Heritage such as Wetlands, Waterfalls, Fountains, and Valleys of Target Tourism Villages, Rites Identified in National Tourism Calendar and Iranian Calendar are in spotlights of attention. Many tourism projects can be attracted and operationalized with the indicators of investment attractiveness, dynamism, openness, and ecotourism. UNESCO has also valued many of Iran's religious rituals and cultural programs and has recorded it as a tangible and intangible World Heritage. The IITE exhibition aims to develop tourism, synergize and define new advantages in enhancing the accommodation, and reception of tourists and the link between pure Iranian art and world peace and always calls for global prosperity, peace, and security.

As the Persians call it "Nesf-e-Jahan", meaning "Half the World", Isfahan, is Persia's third largest city after Tehran and Mashad. Being an ancient province and old city in central Iran, Isfahan has served as one of the most important urban centers on the Iranian Plateau since ancient times and has gained, over centuries of urbanization, many significant monuments. A number of Isfahan's monuments have been designated by UNESCO as world heritage sites. The city was once the largest in the world and flourished between 1050 and 1722 under Safavid dynasty. Nevertheless, it has retained some of its past glory including Persian-Islamic Architecture. Isfahan is also known for the production of the Persian rug and Beryouni dish and for its music and sports.

The main sights of Isfahan include Atiq Jameh Mosque, Bazar-e Bozorg, Imam Square, Imam Mosque, Sheikh Lotfollah Mosque, and etc communities like Christians, Jews, Zoroastrians are as well as the other religions. Moreover, the presence of historical monuments in the city documents its history and the lives of Muslims and other religions alongside one another. The city's splendor began with the reign of the Safavid ruler Shah Abbas I (r. 1587-1629), who made Isfahan his capital and built the Huge Bazaar which was strategically located on the Silk Road.

Handicrafts at IITE2020

Crafts are one of the honors of every nation and country. Traditional handicrafts are the national art collection of each country, expressing a deep and substantial connection to customs, traditions and the social culture. Crafts are among the cultural and artistic heritage that has been passed down through the centuries to future generations.

Isfahan is labeled as the world city of crafts in accordance to the world's crafts council. Isfahan province is proud of having 199 registered fields of crafts. IITE2020 exhibition is the best time and place to make and reinforce a connection with this wide cultural sea.

All accepted products in this exhibition have national registration or UNESCO seal of authenticity that are available in the booths; Moreover, handicrafts of tourism target countries are offered alongside Iranian handicrafts. Iranian gifts are inexpensive, yet unforgettable souvenirs. The magnificence of Persian carpets, the finest works of art produced in Iran, is world-famous.

Meanwhile, Iran's traditional arts are also flourishing and everywhere different ethnic groups are busy creating beauties of their own.

Gelims and jajims are merely two examples among the myriad scores of traditional Iranian textiles. Other examples of Iranian traditional arts include pottery items masterfully ornamented by talented ladies, polychrome glassware, inlaid and tessellated wood panels, block-printed cloth, various objects made of wood, stone or metal, colorful fabrics, and garments made of different fibers.

Other gifts to take back home are countless types of Iranian pastry, confectionery, and dried nuts. Specifically delicious among them are Ājil, gaz, sohān, pesteh (pistachio), bādām (almond), qā'oot, angosht-peech, bāqlavā, and qottāb, the local specialties whose tastes you will remember.

Isfahan Sister Cities

The concept of Sister Cities or Twin Towns can be traced back to the past World War period in Europe when countries and nations ravaged by war sought peace and mutual understanding between cultures, ideas and nationalities. The first known sister cities in the world are Paderborn, Germany, and Mans, France. Here is a list of Isfahan's sister cities:

Sister Cities are a cultural and business bond between two cities states or even countries for mutual benefits. Isfahan as one of the most beautiful cities in the world and Iran's cultural hub signed her first sister city agreement on May 7, 1989 with the city of Xi' an in China. Since then the city of Isfahan has signed more than 15 sister city relationship agreements with countries from around the world.

Tourism & its benefits

In the 3rd millennium, tourism is one of the most peaceful economic activities in the world. Besides economical benefits, tourism brings different religions and countries together and results in deep cultural relations

Iran at a Glance

- Iran is an ancient country where numerous cultures have come into being and where different cultures and religions live alongside each other. As can be seen, from yesterday to today, the co-existence of fire temples, churches, synagogues, and mosques demonstrates that Iran is a country where the East and the West have become neighbours. This great diversity makes Iran an attractive and picturesque land in which every visitor can find his own subject of interest. That is why tourists who travel to Iran can find and enjoy all sorts of attraction they might have sought separately in Iran
- Iran is the land of four seasons, history, culture, souvenir, and authenticity. This is not a tourism slogan, but this is the reality inferred from the experience of visitors who have been impressed by Iran's beauties and amazing attractions. That is to say, what has made Iran a treasury of tangible and intangible heritage is the antiquity and richness of its culture and civilization, the variety of natural and geographical attractions, the four-season climate, diverse cultural sites in addition to different tribes with varied and fascinating traditions and customs different climates can be found simultaneously in Iran
- Beside that, Iran is the land of souvenirs with a lot of Bazars and traditional markets. It is the origin of handicrafts and has more than two hundred kinds of arts and crafts of which it has attained The UNESCO Seal of Excellence. Therefore, tourists who travel to Iran can enjoy the quality of Iranian handicrafts and taste and smell of local foods and cuisine
